New school set for old Passmores site

County plan to meet growing demand for pupil places

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A FORMER Harlow secondary school site will be brought back into use to meet the growing demand for places.

Essex County Council is planning to open a new secondary school on the 25-acre site in Tendring Road, which used to be home to Passmores School until it relocated to new premises in Traces Road in September 2011.

The authority said it intends to open the school, which will take 240 children a year, in September 2018.

County Hall also announced this week that a new 420-place primary school will be built at the Newhall development at a projected cost of more than £9m.

County councillor Ray Gooding, cabinet member for education and lifelong learning, said: "As part of our planning for school places for the next 10 years, we intend to open a new secondary school on the former Passmores site for up to 240 children a year from September 2018."

"Further details, including the cost, are not yet known and currently being explored," he added.

SHUT: Passmores School moved from the Tendring Road site in 2011

The new primary school at Newhall will be built to meet the demand for pupil places during recent years. Projections suggest the increased demand for school places is likely to continue.

As part of the proposals, which have been agreed by ECC cabinet members, a 56-place early years centre will also be built on the same site adjacent to the primary school.

The £9.1m project, financed through developer contributions, is expected to be completed by September 2017.

The cabinet also approved plans to invite proposals from academy sponsors to run the school, which will grow on a phased basis and eventually be able to accommodate two classes per year group.

Cllr Gooding said: "The demand for primary school places in Harlow is growing fast, like many areas of Essex. These proposals will help ensure we have the supply to meet that rising demand."

"I am pleased my cabinet colleagues have agreed to proceed with the plans to create this much-needed primary school and early years unit."

"As a council, we are committed to providing the infrastructure needed to support the county's growth and are planning to spend about £200m over the next five years on creating new school places across Essex."

An appropriate site for the school and early years centre has been identified and will be transferred to Essex County Council by July next year.

Family to follow coastal route in memory of Anne

A FAMILY from Harlow will set off today (Thursday) on a 46-mile sponsored walk along the Norfolk coast to raise money for a cancer charity.

The walk is in memory of wife and mother Anne Phillips, who died in June last year from myeloma, a rare form of cancer of the bone marrow.

Ten members of her family are taking part, raising money for the charity Myeloma UK which funds research and provides support to those affected by it.

Mrs Phillips lived at Church Langley with husband Roy, who is one of those taking part in the walk, and worked at Asda in The Water Gardens.

Awareness

Her stepson David, 31, said: "We're trying to raise as much money as possible but also raise awareness of this rare form of cancer. We really want to shout about it and let people know what it is."

The family will set off from the coastal town of Hunstanton and are due to arrive at Cromer on Saturday.

David added: "I'm excited; it's a nice thing to do with the family and it will be a physical and logistical challenge as we have various degrees of fitness."

"It is important for us all to continue to mark Anne's memory and this is a way of raising money for an important cause whilst celebrating her life."

"We have already raised £2,095 for Myeloma UK which exceeded our £1,500 target."

Spurs legends greet fans at reopening of club shop

SPURS legend Cliff Jones, a member of the 1960-61 double-winning Tottenham team, lined up alongside former club captain and England international Ledley King at the reopening of the club shop in Harlow on Saturday.

The store in the Harvey Centre has undergone a complete refit, with new flooring, lighting and a redesign to provide more space for goods and make it easier for customers with buggies and wheelchairs to shop.

Improvements have also been made to the staff area and stockroom.

Welsh international Jones and King, who was forced to give up playing because of injury, chatted to fans and signed autographs. Tottenham mascot Chirpy the Cockerel was also present.

Boxing coach's skills help Evie to become fighting fit

Child told she'd struggle to climb stairs now lifts weights

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

A LITTLE girl who struggled to walk or ride a bike can now lift half her body weight thanks to a Harlow boxer.

Evie Evans, 5, has Down's syndrome and hypermobility, and her family were told by doctors that she had poor gross motor development.

Gross motor skills enable children to perform everyday functions such as walking, running, skipping, as well as playground and sporting skills.

Evie, who has just started at Churchgate Primary School, also suffers from pulmonary vein stenosis, which caused her to need oxygen at night.

Muscle

Her mother Sara Evans, 43, through her work with charity Kisses4Kids, enlisted the help of boxer Gavin Conway, director of Big Dog Boxing and Madra Mor Boxing Academy at Body Active Gym in Harlow.

At the time, the family were worried about the impact of Evie's lack of stability in the playground at school.

After just eight weeks, Evie has improved her fitness and no longer needs oxygen at night. Her breathing, muscle strength, lung capacity and motor skills have all improved.

"Gavin is an amazing man," she said. "Evie absolutely loves him and what he's achieved with her is really amazing, and in just a few weeks."

"The relationship she has with him isn't replicated with anyone else."

Evie, who has two sisters, spends 30 minutes with Gavin each week, taking part in both fitness exercises – lifting small weights and chin ups – and other less conventional ones including hitting bubbles with a foam hammer and running in front of a large fan.

Sara said: "She also would not tolerate wind, so we could never have the car windows open because she would just scream constantly. But now, after working with Gavin, she's completely changed. It was great preparation to her starting school."

"It has made such a difference to her life," Sara added.

Council probe after residents are left feeling 'cheated'

COUNCIL chiefs are investigating complaints that planning permission for a minicab office was granted on the casting vote of a committee chairman who previously worked for the firm.

The application by Metro Cars to use an empty unit at Mill Court opposite Harlow Town station as a 24-hour minicab office was approved by three votes to two at last Wednesday's meeting of Harlow Council's development management committee.

But residents who attended the meeting to oppose the plan said they felt "cheated" because it was passed on the casting vote of committee chairman Phil Waite.

Cllr Waite did not declare an interest but when challenged during the meeting he admitted he used to work for Metro Cars. However, he insisted it would not influence his decision.

This week Cllr Waite refused to comment but a council spokesman said: "The council is aware of the issues raised by members of the public and is looking into the matter."

One Mill Court resident, who asked not to be named, said: "I was very angry with the decision. I think he [Cllr Waite] should have said something. I would be happy to accept the decision if I considered the meeting to be fair, but they have put us in a position where we feel cheated."

The council received a petition signed by more than 70 people and six individual letters objecting to the plan on the grounds of noise and disruption as well as the loss of parking spaces.

The application said the firm would use 16 of the 105 spaces available.

One disgruntled resident said: "I don't want to live here any more.

Traffic is already slow getting in and out of the car park and there is not enough space."

Frank Hull, who represented a taxi drivers' union, said: "It is a chaotic situation as it is. They will be subcontracting drivers from Epping and surrounding areas into Harlow and they will all rank up outside."

A Metro Cars representative told the committee: "The cars will be picking people up from the station which other firms are already doing. As for subcontracting, there is nothing illegal about that at all."

No reason to stop cycling

SIR On the face of it the statistics quoted in your feature concerning road accidents involving cyclists (Star, September 17) makes a sobering read. However, it is necessary to put the apparent rise in the number of accidents into context.

Essex County Council does count the number of journeys made by Harlow's cyclists – they have journey counters across the network of cycle tracks. It would be helpful if you followed up this somewhat gloomy picture of the situation with the facts about cyclists' numbers. Are they rising?

On a lighter note, it seems to me that your featured cyclist, Dave Sherry, does not get much pleasure from cycling which is missing the point, because not only is cycling an extraordinarily good form of personal transport, it is also extremely enjoyable. If it doesn't make you smile you're doing it wrong!

In my dreams I visualise Essex

County Council eliminating all those hazards; reducing speed limits townwide and everyone riding to work, school and generally commuting in everyday clothing – high visibility and helmet free.

Finally, those of us who cycle regularly are well aware of the blackspots in Harlow and adjust our cycling habits accordingly. It's called risk management. We all do it, some with more thought about the possible outcome of our actions than others.

So don't give up on the idea of cycling because of these gloomy statistics. Just adjust your way of dealing with them according to your ability and carry on cycling.

John Curry
Old Orchard, Harlow

SIR The number of serious/fatal accidents involving cyclists in Harlow makes for unpleasant reading.

What also concerns me is the number of cyclists I observe riding without helmets. And how many use the road at night wearing dark clothing and riding without lights? Some seem completely oblivious as to how invisible they can be, even on

I appreciate that there are various factors involved in these accidents including poor driving, but to not take these simple steps of protection is baffling.

Act now over crisis in care

SIR It is refreshing news that Robert Halfon has finally seen sense and realises the failure of the private sector in providing social care for the elderly for profit (MP: 'Take action at failing care home', September 17).

Like him I am calling on Essex County Council to start reopening old people's homes and I will be sponsoring a motion at the next county council meeting to urge the Conservative administration to reopen those homes they have allowed to be privatised.

Elderly people need to face the future with confidence and can only do so if the crisis in care is addressed.

Firstly, it must be adequately financed and resourced but with the cuts to local government still to be implemented this is unlikely to happen. Secondly, care workers must be given decent pay and conditions otherwise good staff will continue to leave the profession and look for alternative and less stressful employment.

Mr Halfon also has his part to play, particularly as he now has influence at cabinet level. He needs to argue for any end to austerity that hits our social services and get agreement to provide enough money so that these homes, whether in the public or private sector, can flourish.

He also needs to see that at national level that care work is put at the same level as health care – free at the point of entry with well paid and qualified staff.

Junction plan ill-conceived

SIR Belatedly, I wish to add my comments on the proposal for a new M11 junction at Harlow. The suggestion of bringing traffic into the town via Gilden Way is totally ill-conceived and must be the idea of a bureaucrat who clearly has no experience of Harlow.

Yes, it would slightly alleviate the queuing at the existing motorway exits and possibly reduce some of the traffic flow through Bishop's Stortford and Sawbridgeworth, but there would clearly be no improvement at all for Harlow residents.

The bottleneck would move slightly but it would do nothing to reduce traffic on Edinburgh Way en route to Hertford or local businesses or drivers travelling to Pinnacles and beyond via the town centre.

It would also create enormous queues from Sheering into Old Harlow.

The only viable and sensible alternative is to skirt further north of the town as originally proposed, joining the roundabout at the junction with the A414 near to the station. This would provide the benefit of the traffic fanning out to either Edinburgh Way, Pinnacles or Hertford, thus removing most of the through traffic on Edinburgh Way and consequent queue on the A1184.

It would also help with the monumental queues of traffic all trying to leave the town in the evening at the same time.

Perhaps Robert Halfon, in lending his support to the Gilden Way plan, should consider the residents of Harlow and not just through traffic and non-residents.

Questionable behaviour

SIR I watched Prime Minister's questions on Thursday to gain an impression of Jeremy Corbyn. I enjoyed his performance.

Less enjoyable was seeing my own MP, Robert Halfon, paying so little attention to proceedings.

He seemed to spend all the time he was in camera joking with his colleagues and even laughing with one of his fellows at something on his mobile phone.

This behaviour would not be tolerated in schools. So come on Robert, please behave as if PMQs are important even if you don't think they are.

Visitors were delighted to have a chance to visit such an interesting building right on their doorstep that made them proud of Harlow's heritage. Thanks, of course to the Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust for allowing access and to you for the coverage.

Well done to hospital staff

SIR Following an accident at home I spent two days at Princess Alexandra Hospital. While there, I could not have had better treatment and care than if I had been in a top private London hospital.

I saw many doctors, had an ECG, blood tests, X-ray, two different types of CT scans and further blood tests to ensure what had been raised in the first test had settled.

My wound was attended to and then beautifully stitched. Every single member of staff was so kind, caring and helpful. Well done PAH.

WE DID IT: Staff from the A&E department at Princess Alexandra Hospital at the finish of the challenge

Fundraising hospital staff take up the gauntlet

STAFF from Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital's accident and emergency department emerged unscathed after taking part in a 5km gladiator challenge.

The team of 13 competed in the Gauntlet Games held in Watton-at-Stone, Herts, which saw them having to overcome obstacles through a series of zones manned by guards who were trying to hamper their progress.

The PAH team successfully completed the course and in the process raised more than £1,000 towards the cost of refurbishing the patient and visitor area at the hospital's A&E department.

Emergency nurse practitioner Sarah Lewis, 51, said: "We all had a fantastic time and it was a great team-building exercise."

She said that by working as a team they were able to spur each other on.

The group have set themselves a target of £2,000 to pay for the visitor area to be redecorated and equipped with items such as a coffee machine.

"We have identified a couple of areas within the emergency department that we would love to refurbish in order to improve the hospital environment for patients and family members," said Sarah.

The group have raised £1,214 towards their goal.

"We are delighted with the amount of money we have raised to date," she added. "The sponsorship raised through the Gauntlet Games helped us pass the halfway point in our quest and there is no stopping us now."

Row over plans to end Kier contract

Councillors at loggerheads amid concerns over cost

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A ROW broke out between Labour and Conservative councillors over proposals to end the authority's contract with Kier Harlow.

Under the plans, which were approved on Thursday, services would be provided by a new Local Authority Trading Company owned by Harlow Council.

But Conservative opposition councillors slammed the decision which they say was made despite the council "not being able to answer the most basic questions".

Councillor Simon Carter also questioned the cost of bringing services back in house, which at this stage were "unidentifiable".

"How confident are you that this model works," he said. "How can we make such a biggest decision for the next 10 years - a decision that will have a major impact on staff, residents and businesses?"

But Labour councillor Mike Danvers said: "This seems the best way forward. To say that this is a jump into the unknown is rubbish."

"We need to be in the driving seat when it comes to this council. We need to be masters of our own house," he added.

HARLOW CIVIC CENTRE

The authority says the move will provide greater flexibility to allow them to prepare for future Government funding cuts.

Council leader Jon Clempner said: "This is absolutely, without doubt, the most cost-effective solution in the long term - to bring the services back in-house as a local authority trading company."

He added that funding cuts were a "significant worry" and conceded that it may be difficult to protect services in the future.

"This is about getting the best value for money for taxpayers, it is the right thing to do," he said.

Councillor Tony Durcan added: "We can take back what our community wants and when it wants it."

"Standing still is not an option," he added.

The move will also allow the council to plough any profits back into the service, and even bid for contracts elsewhere.

Kier currently provide a range of front-line services including housing repairs and maintenance, repairs to council buildings, street cleaning, grass cutting, pest control, stray dog collection, repairs and maintenance to drainage, gullies and highways owned by Harlow Council.

If rubberstamped by the full council tonight (Thursday), all staff and assets will transfer to the LATC with the new company providing services from February 1, 2017 when the current contract expires.

The cost of the services are expected to be funded within existing budgets at no extra cost to taxpayers.

Minions to be special guests at Home Bargains opening

A SPECIAL appearance by two children's favourites will mark the opening of Home Bargains in Harlow on Saturday.

The UK's largest family-run retailer is investing around £500,000 in the store at The Oaks Retail Park off Edinburgh Way.

The new store has created 50 jobs in the town.

The opening event begins at 8.30am and from 11am will feature children's favourites Gru and Stuart from the hit Dreamworks films Despicable Me and Minions.

The new store will join a network of 400 outlets across the UK, seven of which located elsewhere in Essex.

Opening approximately 50 stores a year, Home Bargains is bucking current trends in the industry.

Joe Morris, operations director at Home Bargains, said: "We're thrilled to be launching our first store in Harlow and look forward to welcoming new customers through the doors."

The 25,216 sq. ft. unit, which sits alongside Carpetright, B&Q, Halfords and McDonalds on the retail park, will offer shoppers a range of products including homewares, health and beauty goods, sweets, snack and drinks.

Mr Morris added: "The Oaks Retail Park will be a great location for us and we're pleased to be a new addition to the local business community."

"We're proud to be able to offer local people top branded goods at exceptionally low prices."

A £350m boost set to bring up to 10,000 jobs to our region

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

PUBLIC Health England is relocating to Harlow in a £350m move to create new world-class labs, Chancellor George Osborne has confirmed.

The move will initially see 900 workers relocating from sites such as Porton Down in Wiltshire to the former GlaxoSmithKline laboratories in Coldharbour Road. A further 10,000 jobs will be created during the construction phase.

Public Health England says the move is a "big step forward for UK public health science".

The new facilities, based on the site currently owned by GSK, will create a centre for research, health improvement and protection working on international health threats, such as Ebola.

The chancellor made the announcement while visiting Harlow on Thursday.

Forefront

"It's going to put this part of the country right at the forefront for science as we tackle some of the most difficult diseases in our world, and indeed some more commonplace like the flu," he said. "It's a really exciting day for British science and a very exciting day for Harlow."

The move will further reinforce Harlow's growing reputation as a science-led town, a reputation started in the 1960's with the development of Fibre Optic Technology by Nobel prize-winner Sir Charles Kao, and continuing today with Harlow Enterprise Zone, a new development for advanced manufacturing and life sciences/medical technology businesses.

Harlow Enterprise Zone is capitalising upon two of the town's strengths - Advanced Manufacturing and Life Sciences.

The Anglia Ruskin MedTech Campus, to be located on the Enterprise Zone, will provide one of the world's largest health innovation spaces for companies of all sizes. It will also have a focus on IT with the establishment of a new business park and data centre complex.

The PHE move was not only crucial for the future of research in public health but it was also the right decision for the taxpayer, said Mr Osborne.

"It's one of the biggest pieces of good news this town has ever had. We are investing a third of a billion pounds here in Harlow.

"Britain will have the world's leading public health laboratories helping to fight disease all over the world and save lives. In the end what's really exciting about this, is not just investment in the economy here but big investment

'We need roads and schools'

INVESTMENT in high-quality homes, roads and schools needs to happen now, according to the developer behind proposals to build 10,000 homes on land north of Harlow.

Welcoming the Public Health England announcement, Places for People said the move is a "huge vote of confidence in Harlow".

Fantastic news

Group director of placemaking and regeneration Mary Parsons said: "The Public Health England relocation is fantastic news and will create thousands of new jobs for residents of Harlow and East Herts, as well as attracting a new generation of skilled workers into the area.

"It is a huge vote of confidence in Harlow and the strategic role that the town can play in the region's economy."

Places for People is proposing to build up to 10,000 homes on land north of Harlow in Gilston, East Herts.

DELIGHTED: Mary Parsons of developer Places for People said the Public Health England relocation was 'fantastic news' council estimating that it will require between 12,000 and 15,000 new homes by 2031 despite limited space within its boundary to build on.

Harlow Council is required by Government policy to boost significantly the supply of housing to meet the needs of the community, which means that 'no housing growth' is not an option.

Ms Parsons said it was essential that the investment needed to make the growth sustainable now follows so that "local communities as well as new residents can gain full benefit".

"We need to invest in local roads and the rail network, provide more high quality homes, schools and facilities close by - and this investment needs to happen now," she added.

"We believe that Gilston Park Estate can play a major role in supporting Harlow in this exciting new chapter and we are fully committed to working with the public sector partners to deliver it."

huge laboratory complex investment

in making sure we have healthier lives and people live longer.

"Harlow is brilliantly placed to make the best of the British economy and I think it's a great place to live and work."

Duncan Selbie, Public Health

England chief executive, said it was a "big step forward".

"Giving our world leading scientists world class facilities, located in the region with the greatest concentration of academic and commercial expertise in life sciences, will ensure we can deal with the health challenges we face now and are certain to in the future," he added.

A date for the opening of the new facilities has yet to be announced.

MP hails 'a very special moment in the history of our town'

MP ROBERT Halfon has described the news that the Government is to invest £350m in creating a world-class health research centre in the town as "the biggest thing that could happen for Harlow families".

Speaking after the announcement, Mr Halfon said he had been campaigning for five years for the move.

"I have fought, campaigned and worked hard to bring Public Health of England to our town. I have engaged in debates, met with ministers, written letters, written questions and given speeches in Parliament on this matter," he said.

"This is a very special moment in the history of our town and it will mean that millions of pounds will be invested and thousands of jobs and businesses will place Harlow at the place of the scientific excellence in east England."

Incredible

Mr Halfon also thanked Harlow Council chief executive Malcolm Morley for his "incredible work" which helped to make it happen.

Harlow Council leader John Clempner echoed his comments and said the move recognises Harlow as a major place in which to invest.

"This is extremely good news for Harlow as it will increase the number of high quality science and research jobs and other job roles in the town," said Cllr Clempner.

"Harlow is at the heart of the London/Cambridge Life Sciences corridor, and this will reinforce Harlow's growing reputation as a science-led town.

"It will also contribute to the Enterprise Zone developments in Harlow and the new world-class public health labs link perfectly with its MedTech focus, as well as increasing the attractiveness of the town for businesses in the science and health sector.

"We want the world's best scientists and researchers to work here in Harlow but we also want to improve higher education and the educational and career opportunities for local people.

GOOD NEWS FOR HARLOW: Council leader John Clempner

"Having world-class labs in Harlow will help to do just that."

The news has been hailed by Michael McKeaveny, principal of the Sir Charles Kao University Technical College in Harlow.

He said: "I am thrilled with the news that Public Health England will be moving to Harlow and the prospects this will offer to our students.

"Our students will be best placed to fill these jobs in the future, having had world-class teaching in the specialism of Medical Technology."

CHARITY: Dog lovers show their support for Mutts in Distress

On your barks, get set . . .walk!

GIVE A DOG A HUG: One owner and his pet raising money for Mutts In Distress

Elizabeth Reeve

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

DOG owners turned out to support a cash-strapped animal sanctuary by taking part in a sponsored walk around Harlow Common at the weekend.

More than 40 people, many accompanied by the canine companions, took part in Sunday's event which raised almost £2,000 for Mutts in Distress.

The money will go towards paying the charity's outstanding vet bills which currently stand at £16,000.

Kerry Snooks, who organised the 3km walk, said: "It was a lot of fun and very successful."

Kerry takes her rescue dog Rocco to training classes to the Mutts in Distress, shelter at Little Hallingbury which was founded by Pat Clark.

Over the past 30 years Pat has rescued thousands of dogs, many on the brink of death, patiently nursing them back to health and finding them new owners.

Kerry, who lives at Bush Fair, and her boyfriend Mike Stow got their dog Rocco from an animal rescue charity in Bishop's Stortford on New Year's Eve 2014. "He was half-an-hour from being put to sleep," said Kerry, 27, who works as a nanny in Harlow and London.

The couple had already started raising money for Mutts in Distress when Kerry had the idea of organising a sponsored walk. Money began streaming in and within days the £500 target figure had been trebled.

"Many of these animals need vital and expensive vet treatment leading to extremely high bills which need paying," she said. "The shelter is now at the point where they will have to start turning away animals unless they can bring their vet bills down soon.

"Please help this amazing lady and her amazing volunteers to help as many of these animals, who otherwise would end up being put to sleep, recover and find new forever homes."

Landowners told to keep an eye on overhanging trees

LANDOWNERS are being advised by Essex County Council to check the branches of trees which overhang roads and pavements.

The warning comes at the start of autumn when seasonal storms make it more likely trees will shed branches or even blow over.

The county council said there is a duty of care on landowners to ensure trees do not pose a threat to motorists and pedestrians and they should take steps to prevent the risk of injury or damage.

Cllr Eddie Johnson, cabinet member for highways maintenance and small scheme delivery said: "The most common safety problems come from overhanging branches reducing the road width and blocking sightlines and road signs, as well as reducing height clearance for tall vehicles such as double decker school buses.

"Overhanging trees also hamper our ability to carry out roadworks, effectively lengthening delays and causing inconvenience to drivers."

People are advised to ensure the footway is clear of vegetation to a height of 8ft (2.5m) and the road is clear to a height of 17ft (5.1m) and 1.8ft (0.5m) from the edge of the road towards their property.

MEP blasts lack of funding for refugee service

LABOUR Euro MP and former Harlow Council leader Richard Howitt praised the work of a charity which helps migrants, refugees and members of ethnic minorities integrate into the community.

Speaking during a visit to the Wych Elm offices of Integrated Support Services on Friday, Mr Howitt said he was proud of his efforts in helping the charity establish itself but criticised the lack of funding from both Essex County Council and the Government.

Since it was set up by a group of migrants and refugees living in Harlow in 2004, ISS has helped to change the lives of hundreds of people living in isolation.

Mr Howitt said: "I want the Government to come to organisations like this to see what kind of service is offered as I think these kind of organisations are key if change is to be achieved.

"The Government claims to care but then when it comes to funding projects that help make the Harlow and Essex economy better, they withdraw all funding. More needs to be done and I'm going to try and put pressure on the Government to do that."

Harlow ISS chief executive Mimoza Matoshi said it was struggling to attract funding at a time when the service it provides was needed more than ever.

"We are now in the position where we have not got any funding secured," she said. "I am worried about what might happen next as we are the only one [ISS] in Essex."

During his visit Mr Howitt was introduced to a teenage girl who has settled in Harlow after migrating from war-torn Eritrea.

Review starts into funding of tax benefit

Council faced with taking 'difficult' decisions

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A TOWNWIDE consultation on the funding of a scheme which offers council tax support to low income households in Harlow is under way.

About 8,400 households struggling to pay their council tax bills currently receive help from the local Council Tax Support scheme.

Of those, almost 5,000 are classed as working age households and are required to pay a minimum 24 per cent of their bill.

Harlow Council contributes £1m towards the annual £6m cost of the Council Tax Support scheme, which is shared between the authority, Essex County Council, Essex Fire and Rescue Service and the Essex Police and Crime Commissioner.

However, continued reductions in Government funding and increasing financial pressures has led the council to consider reducing the amount of support given.

As pensioners are protected by the Government from any reductions, any changes would only affect working age claimants.

Up until now the council has not amended its local scheme to reflect the reduced level of money it receives and has not increased the contribution that working age claimants must make towards their bills.

But now it is looking at ways of funding the scheme, including varying the maximum level of support given to claimants, reducing the spending on other services or increasing council tax bills.

Cllr Mike Danvers, the council's portfolio holder for resources, said: "It is vitally important that we hear from all residents, including those not receiving council tax support."

"In April 2013 we had to take on the responsibility for council tax benefit from the Government but with less funding. Due to ongoing funding reductions, the council continues to face difficult decisions about how to fund the scheme."

"We want to involve all residents in a review of our Council Tax Support scheme and how it is funded. This is about listening to the views of all residents while providing the fairest scheme possible to those who need it."

The public consultation runs until Sunday, October 25 and is open to everyone in the town, including local support organisations. The results will then be presented to the cabinet and a decision taken by the council in December.

More information about the scheme and a link to the online consultation can be found at www.harlow.gov.uk/lcts-consultation. Paper copies can be obtained by contacting the council's revenues and benefits team on (01279) 446688.

High Sheriff welcomes launch of advice service's legal clinic

A NEW law clinic launched by Harlow Citizens Advice has been given the seal of approval of the High Sheriff of Essex.

Vincent Thompson was told about the new service when he met staff at the offices in East Gate.

The service gives clients free 30-minute appointments with specialist solicitors offering advice on a range of issues including housing, family, debt, wills, welfare, employment, immigration, personal injury and medical negligence.

The clinic is run with the support of law firms Attwaters Jameson Hill, Whiskers, TolTops, Jesse Douglas & Aaskells, Barnes & Partners and Foort Taylor.

"The High Sheriff came to hear about the new service and also what is going on in the town as a whole," said a spokeswoman for Harlow Citizens Advice. "As a charity business it is important to have someone like him to come and hear about what we are doing."

The office of High Sheriff is an independent and non-political royal appointment for a period of one year. As part of their role they actively support and encourage crime prevention agencies, the emergency services and the voluntary sector.

Open day will help to dispel hospice fears

GUIDED tours and mini workshops will be on the programme when St Clare Hospice open its doors to the public next month to raise awareness of the services it provides.

The hospice will be holding an open day on Saturday, October 10 to explain how it works with other healthcare providers to improve the lives of people with a life-limiting illness as well as their families and carers.

Director of patient care Philip Ball said: "So many people fear the word hospice because they think it is just a place where you go to die."

"Sadly, too many people in west Essex don't receive the help they could receive from St Clare because of these fears and misperceptions and a lack of understanding about the wide range of services available, not realising that hospice care is about life and living, not just death and dying."

The open day runs from 11am to 3pm during which visitors will be able to talk to staff and volunteers, take part in mini workshops and have a guided tour around the hospice.

Mr Ball added: "If anyone is interested in finding out more about the support St Clare is able to offer those facing one of life's most difficult journeys, then do come along and join us."

It is being held to coincide with the end of national Hospice Care Week, which runs from October 5-11 on the theme of connecting care.

Harlow Dental Surgery looks to the future.

Upgraded patient and staff facilities are making Harlow Dental Surgery the stand out provider for dental health facilities locally. The recently completed refurbishment provides new and existing patients with bright, comfortable surroundings, enhancing the relaxed atmosphere which the Harlow Dental Surgery team are keen to promote.

Owner Mr Dipen Shah commented "We are particularly eager to make our patients feel relaxed about coming to the dentist. By upgrading the waiting room area facilities we are looking to create an atmosphere which is as calm as possible".

Improvements in other key departments have also taken place with much of the dental equipment having been replaced or refurbished. Mr Shah continued "It was clear from when we first came into the practice that modernisation was required for both the benefit of patients and staff". "We have modelled Harlow Dental Surgery on our other practices, so we are confident that the changes we have made will be met enthusiastically by all who visit us".

Furthermore, other areas of the practice have also been upgraded, however not all changes are entirely visible, such as the new central sterilisation room. With a newly computerised patient records and recall system Harlow Dental Surgery is well equipped in all areas for the 21st century. Mr Shah explained, "Harlow Dental Surgery's philosophy of prevention is better than intervention is the message we want to promote, not just for today, but for the long term future".

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A RAM-raid gang who stole a cash machine after smashing a forklift truck through the front of a shop in Roydon may have abandoned it because it was bigger than they had expected.

Detectives have confirmed that the ATM, which was found by police officers on the back of a pick-up truck less than an hour after the raid, had not been opened.

A five-figure sum of cash remained inside the machine even though it was damaged when it was ripped from a wall at the McColl's store in High Street at 2am last Wednesday.

Engineers from the ATM owners were able to confirm the cash was safe after they examined the device following investigations by forensic specialists from Essex Police.

It is believed four men used the forklift to remove the ATM and load it on to the red Hilux pick-up truck. Police officers carrying out a search of the village found both the truck and the cash machine abandoned near a cricket ground and allotments at Occupation Lane on the edge of the village at 2.50am.

Stolen

A white Kia Sportage car, which was also used by members of the gang, was found nearby.

All three vehicles - the pick-up, car and forklift truck - had been stolen during the previous 48 hours.

Detective Inspector Greg Wood said: "The Hilux was right down on its suspension and probably struggled to carry the ATM. It now seems likely that the thieves just dumped the pick-up and car because they realised they could not get far before being caught by police."

"Another factor is that they were probably spooked because so many local people were woken up and they realised police were on the way."

Police are now concentrating their inquiries on how the thieves left the area after dumping the vehicles at Occupation Lane. Anyone with information about the raid should contact officers at Loughton CID on 101 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Horse on verge of death settles into a new home

AN abandoned horse which was found close to death after being tethered by a chain to a hillside in Harlow is now well on the road to recovery.

Four months after being rescued by RSPCA and police officers, the one-year-old skewbald mare has been found a new home.

The horse, named Lara by her rescuers, weighed less than half of what she should have done and virtually every bone in her body was visible.

RSPCA inspector Sam Garvey, said: "This was one of the worst cases I had ever seen, so I am absolutely thrilled the mission to save Lara is now complete and she has settled into her new home."

"I can remember being utterly shocked when we arrived that night to rescue her as she was just so thin, a complete bag of bones. She was just crouched there on that hillside, terrified and trembling, chained to a piece of scrubland with no food or water."

A public appeal to raise funds for her treatment raised more than £8,000.

Government lays down targets for rail franchise bidders

THE Government has set out the customer service targets which must be met by the winner of the East Anglia train franchise will have to meet or else face a financial penalty.

The move, along with provision for ending the practice of flushing human faeces onto the tracks, is part of ambitious plans to improve rail services on the line serving Harlow.

The 'Invitation to Tender' guidelines published on Thursday include proposals for:

- slashing journey times;
- introducing 180 extra weekly services to stations including Cambridge, Norwich, Stansted Airport, Southend and Liverpool Street;
- improving the quality of trains on the network;

- providing free wifi for all passengers;
- reducing crowding on the busiest services.

Three train operators have been shortlisted to compete to take over the franchise. They are a joint venture between current holder Abellio and Stagecoach, First Group and National Express.

A decision on who will be awarded the franchise is expected next summer with the nine-year franchise due to start from October 2016.

For the first time the Government will set customer service targets for the operator and will monitor progress through independent 'mystery shopper' exercises and passenger surveys.

The operator will be expected to show clear year-on-year improvements and will be hit with a financial penalty if targets are not met.

Rail minister Claire Perry described the requirements as ambitious but said they were necessary to make journeys "significantly better" than they are now.

"These plans will also ensure that East Anglia finally has a rail network that supports its growing economy," she said. "We have set out what we want to see bidders deliver as a minimum, but we're looking for bids that exceed our expectations wherever possible."

"It is now for the industry to step up to the challenge and tell us how they will make this happen."

Bidders will also be required to provide plans to end the practice of flushing human waste onto the tracks by fitting controlled emission toilets to all trains.

They will also be expected to invest heavily in improving stations, as well as creating a £9.5m customer and communities improvement fund to benefit passengers and the local community.

More than 135 million journeys are made on the region's rail network every year, with around 4,300 trains a week serving London commuters, the regional hubs of Cambridge, Ipswich and Norwich, leisure travellers to Stansted Airport and coastal and rural resorts around the region.

County Hall planning a shake-up of bus services

Review of network 'long overdue'

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE views of bus users are being sought by Essex County Council as it embarks on a major review of services.

Although the majority of services are run commercially and will not be affected by the consultation, some 260 services currently receive funding from County Hall at a cost to the taxpayer of almost £9m a year.

As a result the authority is now looking at how they are delivered and whether there are better routes or ways of providing the services.

The review, which will shape the future of the county's supported public transport in Essex, will result in the first large scale re-design of the bus network for a number of years.

While 105 of the services will remain unchanged, there are plans to withdraw 18 because alternatives are available while 12 routes will be axed because they are deemed to be of very low use.

Extend

It is also proposed to extend 35, replace 29 with demand response services and significantly redesign 38. Minor changes are planned to 16 services while a further 10 may be taken over and run by an operator.

The Sunday and bank holiday service on the 59 Harlow to Chelmsford route is one of those affected.

Cllr Rodney Bass, cabinet member for highways and transportation, said: "This is a complete re-design of the network which is long overdue. In most cases we are maintaining or extending services."

"Services are only proposed to be withdrawn where there are alternatives in place or they are low use. We remain committed to providing the best possible bus network, maximising services and making them as cost-effective as possible."

He added: "Given the substantial re-design proposed, we need people to engage fully with this consultation and see how the proposals will work for them. I would therefore encourage everyone to take part and have their say."

Anyone who lives, works or visits the county can take part in the consultation which runs until the end of next month.

As part of the process the council had compiled a list all of the individual bus services in each district which receive council funding and outlines any proposed changes and the reasons behind them. It also lists those services that are not changing.

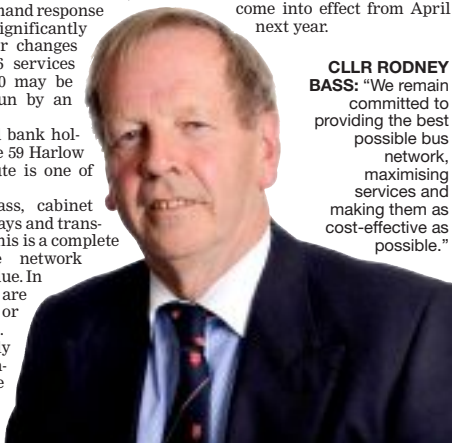

Any service that is not included on the list is operated commercially and so is not part of this consultation.

To view the document and take part in the consultation, visit www.essex.gov.uk/busreview. Hard copies are also be available at all libraries or can be requested by calling 08457 430430.

The changes are intended to come into effect from April next year.

CLLR RODNEY BASS:

"We remain committed to providing the best possible bus network, maximising services and making them as cost-effective as possible."

Fayre play as church turns back the clock

Medieval day attracts more than 1,000 visitors

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A TUDOR queen and a medieval knight mingled with the crowds at a fayre held at St Mary-at-Latton Church in Harlow.

Brightly coloured tents were set up on the green in front of the 900-year-old church as characters in period costume strolled around the grounds.

More than 1,000 people attended the fayre which included falconry displays, archery classes, performances by a local choir and the chance to learn more about the heritage of the building in the heart of the community.

Tany's Dell School produced an interactive display featuring children's games throughout the ages and there was no shortage of refreshments.

Visitors were also given copies of a new full colour heritage booklet detailing the history of the church. Published especially for the occasion, it is still available in the church and from Harlow Museum.

Church vicar Rev Lynn Hurry, said: "It was a joy to see so many people having so much fun.

"There was a lovely village atmosphere about the whole event. It was a really special day bringing the community together!"

The fayre was made possible by the Heritage Lottery Fund, with funding secured by St Mary at Latton working in partnership with Spires Heritage.

Village service pays tribute to The Few

SECOND World War veterans, cadets and schoolchildren joined together in a service to mark the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Britain.

More than 100 people gathered at St Andrew's Church in North Weald to remember those who lost their lives 75 years ago. Fifteen wreaths were laid by community groups, including pupils from St Andrew's Primary School and the Air Training Corps cadets.

North Weald Airfield played a key role in fighting off the Germans at a crucial stage of the war.

Airfield historian Arthur Moreton, who was involved in organising the service, said: "It was much more community orientated than in the past, bringing home the fact it was not just the RAF guys but everybody in the community that helped. That was reflected in the vicar's address.

"The number of people who came was up substantially on previous years and there was a full range of people from senior citizens to schoolkids.

"For a small village like North Weald that is really something."

A service was held in the war graves cemetery at the church in front of the RAF Cross of Sacrifice, at the foot of which the wreaths were laid. The cross overlooks the white headstones of the graves of those who lost their lives in service at North Weald Airfield.

Julie Lorkins, headteacher of St Andrew's Primary School, said: "Our uniform is blue because of the RAF colours and we feel it is important the children understand the significance and the history of both world wars as part of our history and heritage.

"We were introduced as the future, which was really important because the number of people alive in the Second World War is decreasing and it's important the tradition is carried on."

Man seen acting suspiciously near cubicles at Leisurezone

Singing way to a happy future

Choir is celebrating four years in town

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertssexnews.co.uk

A COMMUNITY choir is welcoming new members as it celebrates four years in Harlow.

Harlow Community Choir is made up of both men and women, who range in age from 20 to 75 years old.

Music graduate Sarah Wiggins, 51, who set up the group, has performed with various amateur and semi-professional choirs over the years before becoming a qualified conductor.

"The choir is about having fun and meeting new people, if we make a nice noise that's just a by-product," she explained.

"There is a massive range of experience among our members - from people who claim they can't sing at all but would love to, to people who've sung with choirs for years.

"If you're nervous, please don't worry - this is about having fun and taking part, whatever your previous experience and knowledge. There is no audition, you won't ever be asked to sing on your own and everyone is welcome.

"The choir make me feel fantastic. Lots of people say they feel so much better when they come after a bad day. It's quite humbling."

The choir sing a range of styles, from pop/rock to jazz, gospel to African. The group has performed at the Heart4Harlow Festival, as part of Sing For Your Supper at Bishop's Stortford College, and at the Art of the Garden Party at Harlow Museum.

Member Alison Pavely said: "I absolutely love it, it's my time. It's something I do for me and not for anybody else.

"Even when the weather is bad or I've had a bad day, I don't consider missing it. We have so much fun"

Liz Hay said: "I've always love to sing and wanted to be better than I was. I've been coming four years; I really wanted to do this."

One of the choir's male singers, Derek Fenny, said it was a great way to relax and "take away the ills of the season".

"I love music across the board," he added. "So long as we come along and give it a go, we all enjoy it."

To join email harlowcommunitychoir@gmail.com or call Sarah on 07503918030. Rehearsals are held at the WI Hall in Old Harlow on Wednesdays from 7.30-9.30pm. Each session costs £5, with the first one free. Members do not have to commit to attending every week.

WE'VE DONE IT: The team celebrate their arrival in Lumino

A GROUP of cyclists have completed a gruelling but picturesque charity ride from Harlow to Switzerland.

Eight riders set off from the Lovet Road offices of manufacturing company Lumino to the southern Swiss town of Lumino some 745 miles away.

By the end of the 10-day challenge they had raised more than £3,500 for poverty-fighting technology firm GravityLight.

Managing director Andrew Small said the ride was thought up by his son, Chris, to celebrate the company's 30th anniversary.

"It was a gruelling, amazing experience and we're thoroughly relieved it's over but glad it happened," said Andrew.

"One of our riders flipped over on to the road and skidded along the surface. He had to go to hospital.

"On another occasion the same rider was hit by a car but he was able to continue and all eight of us got to the finish."

Andrew was joined by Chris and his daughter Helena, Freddie Nevel, Tim Fonfara, Yaris Vysh, Jamie Bishop and Graham Slade.

Helena rode part of the route and also doubled up on the support team alongside Julie Deutschmann, Tom Donald and Georgia Strutton.

"We're already planning our next challenge," added Andrew.

Children's comic sells for £17,300

IN the days before smartphones and tablets, children used to look forward to their weekly trips to the newsagents to spend their pocket money on the latest edition of their favourite comic.

For many years one of the most popular was The Beano, which was first printed in 1938 and sold for just 2d - or 1p in today's money.

So it came as quite a surprise when one of only 25 copies of that rare first edition still in existence was sold at auction for a whopping £17,300.

The 28-page comic was bought last week by a Scottish collector.

Auctioneer Malcolm Phillips said: "We guessed the price might go over the estimate of £5,000 because of the sheer amount of interest we had before the sale, but we never expected it to be three times that much.

"We had two very serious bidders who had to have it. The Beano has a place in every comic book collector's heart as it was the most popular comic book in the country. This piece is the number one trophy item."

The first edition came with a free "whoopie mask" toy.

Although the figure of £17,300 is the highest amount ever paid for a copy of The Beano, it still did not beat the £20,350 which was paid for the first edition of another comic called The Dandy back in 2004.

New service for stoma patients is first in Essex

Nurse offers one-to-one care during home visits

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE launch of a new specialist care service is helping to transform the lives of stoma patients living in west Essex.

Nurse Tracey Hart provides personalised frontline care including assessments, treatment and support during face-to-face consultations at the homes of more than 800 people in Harlow, Epping Forest and Uttlesford.

The aim is to ensure that patients receive continuous, high quality care throughout their treatment without the need to travel to their GP practice.

The service is provided by West Essex Clinical Commissioning Group with support from medical supplies firm Coloplast. It is the first partnership between a CCG and industry providing frontline patient care in the district and will initially run for three years.

Counselling

Tracey carries out regular home visits including counselling before and after surgery, telephone consultations and an annual review which was not available before.

She can also prescribe stoma products and can closely monitor an individual's condition and medication, reducing the likelihood of an emergency or crisis situation and potential admission to hospital.

"Working with people across the different communities in west Essex has helped me understand people's day-to-day lives which means I know how best to support them," said Tracey.

"One of my favourite parts of working with people in this way is being able to dispel common misconceptions surrounding stomas. I have the opportunity to reassure them first-hand that they can still live their lives as normal after surgery."

She added: "This new way of working has made a genuine difference to people's lives and the sense of relief I feel from patients makes my job so worthwhile."

Hazel Angus, senior pharmacist at West Essex CCG, said: "Tracey's role is part of an innovative approach to stoma care in west Essex and we're excited to be able to offer local people the specialised care they need within a setting that's familiar to them."

"She has established a mutual trust with her patients, some of whom have had their lives changed completely simply because they now have a dedicated person to speak to."

"Individuals have one point of contact and feel confident managing their stomas at home with Tracey's support."

One patient benefiting from the new service is Sarah Norton, who said: "Providing one-to-one care in a person's home means Tracey has unique knowledge of their individual set-up and lifestyle and can adapt the way she delivers care accordingly."

"As a patient, it's reassuring to me that Tracey is aware of my individual circumstances and is able to help make arrangements should an emergency unexpectedly arise."

"The work she does is invaluable and she appreciates, and accommodates for, the distinct needs of different people - a one-size-fits-all approach doesn't work when it comes to stomas."

Patients in west Essex who have had, or are due to have, stoma surgery will be contacted by their GP practice with more information about the new service, with the option to opt-out if they prefer.

You can specify how much time you would like to give; this could be a few hours or a couple of days. You will be required to carry out some or all of the following: - Transport an elderly person from hospital. Ensure they have basic supplies. Carry out a risk assessment to enable further visits from volunteers. Complete a short questionnaire to enable us to place them with a befriending volunteer.

All volunteers will be supported by a Service Manager and Administrator. Volunteers have continual training. Volunteers must be 18 years or over but there is no upper age limit. Mileage expenses will be paid at 45p per mile. All volunteers will be subject to a Disclosure and Barring Service check.

Set sail for panto fun

AN audience in Stortford, clapping rhythmically and replying "yes" to a little boy who refuses to grow up, have declared that they do believe in fairies.

But there's no need to worry. What may appear a bizarre, possibly sinister, cult taking crowds to another land hasn't arrived in the town. It's merely the sight and sound of this year's summer pantomime at Rhodes.

A crowd made up predominantly of children, proudly waving pirate swords and magic wands which flickered with colour, and parents, enjoying the musically driven production of Peter Pan, had been taken away to Neverland.

They were whisked there by Bishop's Stortford and Harlow's Phoenix Theatre, a supremely talented group of Herts & Essex youngsters. The young actors played the best side of the good versus evil battle – as Peter Pan took on Captain Hook.

This musical version of Peter Pan, a children's favourite written for the stage by Scottish playwright J. M. Barrie in 1904, was a nostalgia trip for parents while kids added boos at each Captain Hook appearance later in the show.

The Disney film version in 2003, produced almost a century after the story's first telling, is the most familiar depiction of the tale for parents and children in our time.

As lights dimmed and the curtain was drawn open on the Rhodes stage, electric guitars and drums brought some zip to this up-tempo interpretation.

Immediate impressions came from its exquisite set. Designed with the help of former Royal Academy of Dramatic Art head of design Douglas Heap, it set the tone for the company's slick production.

Anyone attending an amateur production might fear slow delivery, but accomplished lead performances, helpfully accompanied and led by the metronome of a recorded soundtrack, kept the journey to Neverland moving swiftly along.

The Darling family house was its first scene. Family dog Nana (Drew Gregg), appeared with eldest sister Wendy Darling (Gabriella Morgan), eldest brother John Darling (Matthew Goodeve) and youngest family member Michael Darling (Sam Ronco).

Gabriella was authoritative and thoughtful in her performance, while Matthew was one of the funniest in the play and little Sam – with his dangling night cap adding to the trio's pyjama costumes – was brilliantly endearing and confident throughout.

Phil Dale, who founded Phoenix in 2008 and is also the artistic producer at Rhodes, was playful as both the dad of the Darling family and Captain Hook. Much more loving towards the children, was Mrs Darling (Candace Scott).

Tantalising in its build up, the eventual appearance of Kali Dronsfield as Peter Pan was one of swagger and mischief. As the little boy who refuses to grow up, she played Peter's need for adoration well, with dynamism and animatedly.

Making good use of technology for the problem of how to depict flight on the stage, a dark screen flew down and green screen technology saw the trio fly in an amusing projection.

In Neverland, leader of the lost boys Tootles, played by Will Edden, was suitably regimented like a soldier but expressive, while the 'natives', with face paint and rags for clothes, performed the best choreography with a terrific tribal dance to tom-tom drumming.

Audience participation was at a minimum, and not requested either, for the first half of the play. It seemed a strange decision, considering the large foam hands, wands and pirate swords sold just outside beforehand. But this changed after the interval.

Captain Hook, a looming figure played by Phil Dale, was commanding as part of his comically hopeless pirate crew. His approach was the most direct with the audience throughout – apart from one specific plea by Peter Pan – prompting boos at the play's peak and laughter in his clumsiest moments.

Audience participation reached its height on the high seas. Comedy met emotion in its almost sing-a-long climax. School friends swayed in the stalls as Wendy Darling (Gabriella Morgan) sang the production's saddest song.

Directed by the theatre company's director Jeanne Stacey, it's a slick and enchanting show with care taken to keep the audience's attention – including by mute Tinkerbell, played by Tegan Griffiths, waving to people and improvising expressive moves between acts.

There are 10 evening and matinee performances of Peter Pan the musical from Friday, September 18, until Sunday, September 27. Performance times vary. Ticket prices are £17, £15 for concessions and £60 for families.

Tuck in to a feast of comedy at The Playhouse

A FEAST of comedy will be served up in Harlow tomorrow (Friday) when four TV comedians take to the stage for the latest Live @ The Playhouse performance.

The line-up of Tom Deacon, Pippa Evans, Sean McLoughlin and Joe Wells will present an evening of deadpan, observational and alternative humour during the show which will be compered by Tom Toal.

Tom Deacon has been performing stand-up for the past six years and is now considered to be one of the hottest young comedians on the circuit. With three sell-out Edinburgh solo shows under his belt and the host of his own TV, radio and online shows, he has made guest appearances on BBC2's The Rob Brydon Show, Dave's One Night Stand and ITV2's Fake Reaction.

Pippa Evans has appeared on BBC 3's Live At The Electric and Comedy Central's Drunk Histories. She has taken four critically acclaimed shows to the Edinburgh Fringe and is a regular guest with

The Comedy Store Players.

Sean McLoughlin arrived on the comedy scene in 2007 and since then has performed at gigs of all sizes in the UK and internationally. At one point he was booked to play a bingo hall in Newcastle and the Royal Albert Hall in the same week.

Joe Wells' writing career began when his first book, Touch and Go Joe, about his experiences of OCD was published. Since then he has made a name for himself as a stand-up comic, writer and speaker. ■ Live @ The Playhouse is at Harlow Playhouse tomorrow (Friday, September 25) at 8pm. Tickets cost £16.50 and are available from the box office on (01279) 431945 or www.playhouseharlow.com

What the Dickens?

It's a challenge to adapt one Charles Dickens story to the stage so imagine the struggle of trying to condense his whole back catalogue into one performance.

From the highs of Oliver Twist to the lows of Bleak House, Dickens Abridged attempts to tackle every novel from one of Britain's most loved authors in one show at Harlow Playhouse next month.

A slender cast of four play a group of American Dickens fans, who themselves are putting together a performance about the author.

Matt Bateman takes on the role of Dickens as well as a number of other characters.

"We cover the life of Charles Dickens in 90 minutes," he said.

"It is a very funny show as many of his plays had comedic elements – but what people may not know is about that Dickens himself had a great life that deserves to be celebrated.

"We feature Oliver Twist quite a lot, as some of that play is autobiographical for Dickens.

"Bleak House is told over 90 seconds and I think Tale of Two Cities is only about 10 seconds long.

"It is all very fast paced, but a good fun romp whether you're a Dickens fan or not."

The other three characters, of a mixture of ages and backgrounds, are played by Martin Sarreall, Andy Gallo and Matthew Hendrickson.

The play is directed by Adam Long, one of the founding members of The Reduced Shakespeare, who is an American with a love for British culture.

It sounds a bit confusing to think that the actors will be donning an American accent to play British characters – but Matt said the extra quirk adds to the show's charm.

The 23-year-old from Stoke-on-Trent was buzzing to be part of any creation by the director he describes as a "genius".

"The idea is that there are four guys from California who are from various walks of life, but are united by their love for Dickens.

"They are fantastic creations of Adam's and this is their show.

"Having worked with Adam, I've just got to say that the man is a genius – there is no other word for him.

"We have been in rehearsals for a month but now the show is good to go."

The autumn tour will take the group all over the country and the date on Wednesday, October 21 will be their only night in Harlow.

While Matt has never been to Harlow and the unusual plot premise could be a hurdle for an audience – the actor is sure the play has the strength to win any crowd over.

"It has been amazing so far, the reaction, we have been getting four or five star reviews.

"Some people have come up to us after the show and been surprised we're not American.

"No one yet has raised any objection about the accent.

"There are even a few songs in there, and people get really into it. I've been loving it so far and I can't wait for Harlow audiences to see it."

Dickens Abridged will be performed on Wednesday, October 21, at Harlow Playhouse. Tickets cost £16.50 and can be purchased from www.harlowplayhouse.co.uk.

Disturbing play is gritty take on the lives of modern teenagers

HARLOW Theatre Company's latest was a far grittier affair than the name Punk Rock suggested and my expectations of a School of Rock style show were quickly cast aside.

Set in the present day in the library of a grammar school in Stockport, the only punk rock played is a blast of The White Stripes while the scenes change round and the characters only briefly discuss music.

The title of Simon Stephens' play is more to sum up the frustrations, disillusionment and recalcitrance of youth rather than its soundtrack – and after the initial confusion, the name turns out to be a fitting one.

The six leads are all 17-year-old sixth-formers studying (or not in some cases) for their mock exams and the half-dozen are quickly introduced.

At first glance we have the classic characters you'll find in any school-based drama.

There's Bennett, the school bully, Lilly, the attractive new girl, Tanya, the quiet but good natured one, Nicholas, the jock, William, unworldly, Cissy, the straight-A irritant and Chadwick, the nerd.

All six are perfectly cast, and the young actors deliver such credible performances it brings back memories of school you'd rather forget.

While the early interchanges somewhat expected (Bennett bullies Chadwick, William is eager to impress Lilly) the power of their performances keep you hooked.

The audience can empathise with poor old Chadwick's feeling of just wanting the bell to ring so he can leave.

Another strength is the equal stage time enjoyed by the leads – and the absence of a real protagonist means we can appreciate the ups and downs of every character.

The plot doesn't really develop in a conventional sense, but more through the changes of characters and the downward spiral of William is central to the story.

Rhys Hayes gives the stand-out performance in portraying William's transformation from a kooky dimwit to an unhinged psycho.

The climactic scenes are both exhilarating and disturbing which is a testament to the pacing of the play and direction of Jane Miles.

While the show has now run its course at the Victoria Hall Theatre, which was sadly not at capacity, it is well worth keeping an eye on what these fabulous young talents attempt next.

Verdict: 4/5

FAME GAME: Dane deHaan stars as James Dean and Robert Pattinson is Dennis Stock in Anton Corbijn's Life

Getting James Dean in the frame

Life

DRAMA: (15) 111 minutes

Director: Anton Corbijn
Starring: Robert Pattinson, Dane DeHaan, Joel Edgerton, Sir Ben Kingsley

DIRECTED by Anton Corbijn, the celebrated Dutch photographer who made a seamless transition to celluloid with the 2007 biopic Control about Ian Curtis of Joy Division, Life is a handsome drama about an unsung hero and his close working relationship with a subject, who transfixes us 60 years after his untimely death.

In 1955 Los Angeles, photographer Dennis Stock

(Robert Pattinson) – an employee of the Magnum agency overseen by John Morris (Joel Edgerton) – struggles to fulfil work commitments and his responsibilities to a young son, Rodney (Jack Fulton).

At a party thrown by Nicholas Ray (Peter Lucas), Stock encounters an awkward 24-year-old called James Dean (Dane DeHaan) propping up the bar.

The photographer is transfixed and spots a raw talent that could turn Dean into a global star. He proposes a photo essay in Life magazine but the actor is reluctant to sell his soul for a few pictures.

Stock persists, capturing one of the most famous shots of the leading man: Dean with a cigarette as he walks through a rain-sodden Times Square.

The snapper joins Dean on a trip back home to Indiana for some quality time with his uncle Marcus (Ron White), aunt Ortense (Eve Crawford) and young cousin Marcus (Kasey Lea).

Meanwhile back in Hollywood, Jack Warner (Sir Ben Kingsley) makes clear to Dean that he will need to scratch the backs of studio executives to land his dream role in Rebel Without A Cause.

Life is blessed with a mesmerising performance from DeHaan as the handsome star, who died seven months after his memorable encounter with Stock.

Pattinson is understated, but there is a pleasing rapport between the two actors as their characters wrestle with the hefty price of celebrity in an era of controlling studios.

Cinematography and impeccable production design beautifully capture the fashions and fads of a smoke and booze-stained era.

Corbijn directs at a pace that some audiences might find glacial, but considerable patience reaps decent emotional rewards. Damon Smith

A moving sob-athon

WEEK

Miss You Already

COMEDY DRAMA (12A) 112 mins
Director: Catherine Hardwicke
Starring: Toni Collette, Drew Barrymore, Dominic Cooper, Paddy Considine, Honor Kneafsey, Ryan Lennon Baker, Tyson Ritter, Frances de la Tour

BEST FRIENDS:
Toni Collette and Drew Barrymore
in Miss You Already

In 1988, Beaches starring Bette Midler and Barbara Hershey was the weepie du jour for a generation of women, hankering for a bittersweet portrait of steadfast sisterly solidarity.

It's been a long wait but actress Morwenna Banks provides 21st century gal pals with their own sob-athon as screenwriter of this occasionally foul-mouthed comedy drama set in the shadow of breast cancer.

There are tears aplenty in Catherine Hardwicke's film, predominantly shed by lead actresses Toni Collette and Drew Barrymore as they rage against a cruel disease that affects one in eight women in the UK.

There is humour and pathos too, not least in one beautifully handled scene between a wig maker (Frances de la Tour) and Collette's patient, as they select a new permanent barnet to replace the flowing locks lost to chemotherapy.

Pleasingly, Banks' script doesn't paint characters as saints or martyrs. They are deeply flawed and behave badly, even at their lowest ebb, propelling a wrecking ball through a marriage when they should be fighting for survival.

Collette and Barrymore play best friends Milly and Jess, who met at school and have shared pivotal coming-of-age moments like losing their virginities. Now 30-something and fabulous in radically different ways, the pals are braced for middle age.

Milly is a PR executive with a handsome husband Kit (Dominic Cooper) and two cherubic offspring, Scarlett (Honor Kneafsey) and Ben (Ryan Lennon Baker).

Bohemian earth mother Jess lives on a house boat with her oil rigger husband Jago (Paddy Considine) and cluckily prepares for the arrival of their first child.

Out of the blue, Milly is diagnosed with cancer and has to confront her mortality without her designer high heels.

As usual, Jess is by her side every painful step of the way, including a double mastectomy that forces Milly to question her femininity.

Timed for release ahead of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Miss You Already is galvanised by believable screen chemistry shared by the two leads.

Barrymore oozes adorability, while Collette has the meatier role and teases out the selfishness of her ambitious career woman.

Scenes of Milly pre and post-surgery are moving, leavened by flashes of humour as friends and family attempt to buoy Milly's spirits. Plotting is a tad haphazard and a protracted 250-mile trek to the Yorkshire Moors creates unnecessary conflict.

Thankfully, screenwriter Banks redeems herself with a well-judged final act that tugs our heartstrings without feeling like we're being shamelessly manipulated.

WORTH A WATCH

Mike's TV Film of the Week

CRIME: SNATCH 5*, Friday, September 25, 11.25pm
Writer/director Guy Ritchie's 1998 feature film debut, Lock, Stock And Two Smoking Barrels, was one of the most influential of all British movies. But not for long, and not necessarily in a good way. Himself influenced by Quentin Tarantino, Ritchie's effect on this country's cinematic landscape was immediate and extreme – after Barrels' success suddenly it seemed every Brit film featured colourfully nicknamed criminals, hard nuts, lowlifes, chancers and psychos, swearing heavily (usually in a cockney accent) and shedding blood. Most of them were dire.

Not Ritchie's own follow-up, though – Snatch is a lot of fun. Like its predecessor, it's an ensemble piece – we're introduced to a dozen of the main characters in the flashy title sequence, and then wait for them to turn up. There's proficient armed robber and chronic gambler Frankie Four Fingers (Benicio Del Toro doing only the second oddest accent for a change); hapless armed robbers Sol and Vinny (an appealing Lennie James and Robbie Gee); shady diamond merchant Doug the Head (Mike Reid) and his American gangster relative Cousin Avi (Dennis Farina enjoying himself); Brick Top (Alan Ford exuding charmlessness), a ruthless gangster who chops up his victims and feeds them to his pigs; gun seller and former KGB man Boris the Blade (Rade Sherbedgia); and manhunter Bullet-Tooth Tony (Vinnie Jones). If we're siding with anyone in this melee, though, it's Tommy (a very winning performance from Stephen Graham), and Turkish (Jason Statham), a pair of illegal boxing promoters who fall foul of Brick Top. Statham, who had never acted before Ritchie cast him in Barrels, is at his most effective here – giving Snatch the solid centre it needs while easing into the fast lane to unlikely stardom. Ritchie's coup, however, was in obtaining the services of already established superstar Brad Pitt, who is a riot as outrageously accented "Pikey" bare-knuckle boxer Mickey. There are no women to speak of. The plot has two criss-crossing strands; one involving two fixed fights and the other a large stolen diamond, and it all works quite nicely, if mechanically. Meanwhile, Ritchie's camera hyperventilates.

There's no point criticising Snatch for being juvenile and shallow, but the dialogue is not always as good as Ritchie thinks it is. It features the lines "It's an unlicensed boxing match, not a tickling competition"; "It's a four-ton truck, Tyrone. It's not as if it's a packet of f***** peanuts"; "Where'd you lose him? He ain't a set of f***** car keys, is he?" and, in response to being asked to "open up" a dog, "It's not as if it's a tin of baked beans". Which would be fine, if they weren't spoken by four different characters.

Initiative funded by Essex County Council always get obsessed with things," says head chef Ramael Scully, explaining how he recently spent £100 on eBay buying 1.5kg of the rare spice, Grains of Paradise.

"It's like drugs!" shouts his friend, collaborator and boss, Yotam Ottolenghi – but then, if you're as consumed by food and flavour as these two, addiction is inevitable.

What makes Ottolenghi food – which you'll know if you've ever eaten at an Ottolenghi restaurant, bought an Ottolenghi cookbook or read an Ottolenghi recipe in the Israeli chef's Guardian column – is the sheer number of ingredients involved.

"Haha, we're not Italian cooks. It's not like four great ingredients put on a plate," says the 46-year-old restaurateur with a laugh. "Of course, a fresh tomato with olive oil is a great thing, but that's definitely not the way I grew up – otherwise it wouldn't be Ottolenghi."

He explains it wouldn't be NOPI or Scully food either – and this is the pair's current project, a restaurant standard cookbook based on the food served at NOPI, Ottolenghi's renowned eatery in London's Soho.

But this is a restaurant book with a twist, do not expect a coffee table slab, to be looked at and not touched. It should be daubed with spice and oil.

"I thought it was going to be a very chef-y cook book, so I was really excited," says Scully wryly. "Then [Yotam] was like, 'No, Scully, we're doing the restaurant food we do here for home cooks'. I thought, 'Yeah, it'll be a walk in the park' – it was the hardest thing I ever did!"

Jerusalem-born Ottolenghi first met Scully – who grew up in Australia but has Chinese, Indian, Malay and Irish blood – in 2005, hiring him as chef de partie.

"It's not a typical story where someone grows under someone else's roof," explains Ottolenghi. "Scully came in with his own style already. Obviously, it's evolved and changed over the years, but I haven't taught him how to cook. It's a partnership."

"Yotam is a man of words," says Scully graciously. "I had all these ideas and crazy things on the plate and Yotam's like, 'No, no, no, too much Scully, calm down'. But he knew I always had the flavour part, I just couldn't control it on the plate. And that built between us all these years. Sometimes, now, I tell him he's got too much on the plate!"

This was the trickiest aspect of putting together the NOPI cookbook: lopping off at least some of the ingredients Scully would ordinarily use in the restaurant kitchen.

Top picks include the twice-cooked chicken, the Urid Dhal cod ("A very satisfying dish for entertaining," promises Ottolenghi) and the vine leaf pie (a "piece of heaven", apparently), and they can't help spiralling into off-the-cuff cooking tips ("If you're making tzatziki – put burnt butter in it," encourages Scully).

Luxury and comfort with the new Tourer

TESTED Toyota Avensis Tourer

David Ward

THANKFULLY, gone are the days of yesteryear when car makers wanting to provide extra luggage space on a saloon or hatchback simply stuck a bit of extra bodywork on the back end as a kind of afterthought and called it an estate.

Buyers are more sophisticated and demanding today and manufacturers have realised too that more and more motorists want all that extra room on board, but with the same comforts, furnishing and surrounds that a saloon or hatchback offers.

Estate cars sales remain big business, particularly in this country, but car makers have also moved the game further on upmarket as we say and call them tourers, not estates!

Prime example is the latest Toyota Avensis Sports Tourer, which is the most well designed and engineered estate car to ever emerge from that car maker and it's easy to see why it's winning rave reviews for its smart looks, sheer driveability and, of course, ample inside luggage room.

This latest Avensis can best be described as a comprehensive update all round of the previous version with noticeable improvements inside and out rather than a completely new generation model.

All these are aimed at reaching the heights of the class-leading VW Passat Estate, which is overall more expensive, so Toyota realised that this latest load-lugger had to be packed with all the latest gizmos on board and offer far more all-round comfort and ease of driving but not too pricey.

Key too is that all versions offer incredible value for money with quieter, more efficient engines, including lower running costs and in both departments, this new Avensis Sports Tourer scores high marks.

Engine-wise, there's a new 1.6-litre diesel one available, capable of topping around 67mpg with sensible driving, plus two petrol choices of either a 1.8-litre or a new two-litre.

With fleet/company car buyers again taking over two-thirds of all Avensis sales in this country, factors like decent standard equipment levels with loads of options available are crucial - plus all-important cheaper running costs while Toyota sensibly offers special Business Editions versions in their line-up.

Prices are certainly competitive and have to be in this company car sector, with the Avensis Sports Estate coming in at around £18,945 and again, crucially for any buyer, with that impressive and standard five-year Toyota warranty on board.

For those who want to compete with the higher levels of the Passat Estate, then the top of the range Excel Sports Tourer is the one to go for because it offers excellent value for money, yet it's much cheaper than its German-made rival.

Driving the 2.0-litre manual Excel, it's easy to see why it appeals particularly to business drivers because it's so quiet and refined, offers a smart and comfortable cabin and returned 54.1mpg on some 600 miles of varied road routes, mostly fully loaded.

The 141 bhp on tap is swiftly delivered through a really light yet positive six-speed gearbox, without doubt the best manual gearbox Toyota has ever come up with, while CO2 of only 124 g/km provides decent benefit in kind for business users of 22 per cent and an insurance group of 19E.

The four cylinder, in-line 16-valve DOHC engine is really responsive when needed, but is equally at home trundling around heavily congested town/city centre roads with help from that exceedingly good gear change.

The Sports Tourer ride has also been noticeably improved over the old version, with the better suspension easily soaking up the many bumps and lumps we now see on our roads and for its class it must rate as being top for ride and comfort.

At the end of the day, such load-luggers are all about how much capacity they have for the likes of suitcases and other luggage and this Avensis is on a par with rivals, providing 543 litres of room with the rear seats in use, increasing to 1,609 with the rear seats folded.

Obviously, anyone opting for an Excel trimmed model won't find it cheap - the test car came in at £29,090 - but when you weigh up that figure with the remarkable high level of kit on board and then compare the equivalent in the Passat, for example, then it represents good value for the outlay.

Naturally, company car drivers will probably opt for the cheaper Business Edition models, but here again the levels of standard equipment on board are exceptionally good when again you compare to other rival estates in this sector.

This Sports Tourer in Excel form is also the safest we've ever seen, with a high list of standard features that include a pre-collision system with autonomous emergency braking which I was grateful for when 'white van man' pulled straight out of a side road directly in front of me. Yes, the system certainly works and helped me avoid a nasty crash.

There's also front, side, curtain and driver's knee airbags, ABS, traction control and vehicle stability control and more on board.

For the driver, the eight-inch touch screen is so simple to use straight off and provides the driver with everything he or she needs while all the controls, dials and stalks are well positioned and again making it a car that's a pleasure to drive.

Verdict: The many subtle changes Toyota has made to their estate (sorry, tourer) now puts it up well and truly amongst the Premier League pacesetters.

Cleverly, too, with special Business Editions on offer, it will capture the all-important company car buyer.

For the perhaps more budget-conscious private, family buyer, the cheaper models with the 1.8-litre petrol engine under the bonnet will prove more than efficient, giving the same quality and comfort of ride and drive as the dearer models.

If the household budget allows, still go for the Excel because it's well worth the money, certainly when compared to rivals like the Passat, and it will give far more satisfaction in driving out on the road yet remain economical to run.

As they say, they don't make estate cars like they use to - thankfully!

Scrap Cars

End of the road
for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

BERR

End of the road? Get over it and move on with your local ATF:

B & T Motor Salvage

We offer free collection, on the same day if necessary, using our own recovery vehicles and issue a Certificate of Destruction from the Department of Vehicle Licensing Authority via our direct link to their website. Payment per vehicle negotiable.

Leopards face a double shift over weekend

LEVETT Essex Leopards face a weekend double-header of National Trophy matches as they aim to maintain their winning start to the season.

The Big Cats host Westminster Warriors at Harlow Leisurezone on Saturday (7.30pm) before they travel to Barking Abbey to face Kent Crusaders.

After wrapping up pre-season with a one-point midweek win against Team USA, Leopards recorded two tight wins to open their season over the weekend.

London Lituanica were beaten 71-68 in a National Trophy game at the Brentwood Centre on Friday before they beat London Pride Southwark 87-86 on their travels on Sunday.

On Friday, new recruit Justin Hitchman was the key for coach Steve Ogunjimi's team as he led the way with 21 points, eight rebounds and three steals as the Big Cats broke their hoodoo against a side who had knocked them out of the National Cup twice in three years.

Captain Albert Margai finished with 16 points and seven assists, as well as drawing eight fouls from a physical Lithuanian side featuring former Leopard Lukas Volksis.

Will Ashby added 13 points, while Ladi Brown was a rebound short of a double-double with 11 points and nine boards.

The hosts scored the first seven points of the game and led by as many as 13 in the third period but the visitors fought back and it took seven Ashby points, together with a pair of Margai free-throws down the stretch, to seal the victory.

History

Two days later the Big Cats narrowly avoided what would have been the biggest upset in their history as they blew a big lead before scores from Hitchman and Tosin Oyelese clinched the win and a trip to Barking & Dagenham Thunder in the National Cup second round.

Brown, who led Leopards with 18 points, scored the Big Cats' first nine points, and a Hitchman put-back saw their lead extended to 12 points as the visitors went into the first break 28-19 ahead.

Scores from Ashby and Oyelese increased that lead at the start of the second period, and with 3min 22sec on the clock a pair of Ashby free-throws put the Big Cats up by 21 points.

The introduction of Pride cut their deficit to 54-39 at half-time and, with momentum against the Leopards, a calamitous end to the third period saw the home side score twice in the final six seconds to make it 63-69 going into the final quarter.

Things didn't get any better in the fourth period with Pride putting them into the lead with six minutes remaining, and it took a trey from Margai and a Tom Martin score on the break to keep Leopards in the game before Hitchman and Oyelese ended the hosts' hopes of an upset.

All change at Clapton as derby day returns

Countdown begins as club looks to renew local rivalry

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE countdown has begun to the eagerly-awaited derby between Harlow and Upper Clapton next month.

Clapton, who have agreed a new sponsorship deal with Synter Chigwell, got life in London Division Three North East off to a flyer with a convincing 36-19 win over Lowestoft & Yarmouth on Saturday.

Lowestoft were fifth last season and even won at Ram Gorse.

Clapton's head of development, Paul Donnelly, is convinced the Thornwood Common-based side can excel this term after their promotion from the Essex League via a play-off.

"Frankly we have two of the best coaches in Essex and the Eastern Counties," he beamed.

World Cup

One of those coaches, Keith Green, will be missing for the first six weeks of the season as he has been appointed Team Samoa Liaison Officer for the duration of the Rugby World Cup.

He was in Brighton on Sunday for Samoa's first match, a narrow 25-16 win over the USA.

It means Clapton's coaching duties fall to his joint coach Dean Cutting.

Donnelly says Green and Cutting have introduced a culture of respect at the club.

He said: "Even when we were hammering a side last season we did not take the mickey – there was no showboating. They have installed a culture of winning in the right way."

There has been a fierce rivalry between the Rams and Clapton for many decades, but Donnelly says the relationship is good.

"There's no animosity – we don't need that in sport. We need to move forward. A lot of the boys know each other and drink together," he said.

"Hopefully we can get back to the way it used to be. It's just another game."

The sides will meet at Ram Gorse in London & South East Division Three North East on October 24 in what could be the very last time this league fixture is played at Harlow's Elizabeth Way home, their base for 60 years.

The club hope work on their new multi-million pound complex off Howard Way will be completed at the end of next year.

Cutting has also seen a huge amount of work at Clapton's ground in Uplands Road, with a new clubhouse built.

"We need to match that on the pitch. Our focus is just on the rugby side," Cutting said.

"Our main aim is to make sure we stay in Division Three North East."

Clapton's new signings include centre James Kildren, back Luke Brewin and hooker Joe Parkin.

"They bring experience and add to the players we have already got. They bring the X factor to the rest of the team and hopefully they will all learn from each other," added Cutting.

"It's a good club, forward thinking, we don't get free reign but we don't get held back in the way we want to do things."

At home to Lowestoft & Yarmouth on Saturday, the opponents were delayed due an accident on the M11, which resulted in the kick-off time being pushed back to 3pm.

Clapton fought back from 14-6 down at half-time to win and are fifth in the table.

Promotion the target for Harlow

THE East Men's Hockey League season started in style for Harlow as they triumphed 4-1 at Maldon seconds.

Skipped by Ben Light (pictured) this year, the team showed true character as they came from behind to win.

With the introduction of a few old faces, Harlow went into the game with the firm belief this will be the season to push for promotion.

However, that belief took its time to translate on the pitch, with a host of penalty corners not hitting the mark.

As the half progressed the game became very scrappy, while defender Lee Goringe came off feeling unwell after a clash on the pitch.

As Maldon gained a grip on the game the defence was stretched and a few smart saves from keeper Rich Norris kept the scores level.

Maldon netted when a rebound was tucked away after Norris saved from a penalty corner.

Soon after the restart things were all level, Luke Krzoska broke down the right flank and slipped through Andy Boughtwood who slotted past the scrambling keeper for 1-1.

The second followed in a matter of minutes as James Munro ran riot on the left flank and found Adam Otley unmarked, who dispatched a thunderous strike to take the lead.

Harlow's third settled any jittering nerves in the last ten minutes.

Benn Hagger poached the ball at the halfway line, shimmed round the on-rushing keeper and rolled it home.

Boughtwood fired home his second, Harlow's fourth, late on in the match.

Mixed fortunes as hockey teams start their seasons

THERE were mixed fortunes for Harlow Hockey Club's women's teams as they began their Essex League campaigns at the weekend.

Both teams played against Witham sides, but while the seconds recorded a 3-2 victory, the first team – once again captained by Emma Tweddle – went down 5-1.

Against Witham's first team, visitors Harlow were on the back foot from the start and the hosts went in front after a move down the right early on.

Witham made it 2-0 before debutant Laura Maynard set up the prolific Anna Fernandinho who slotted home to halve the deficit.

Sam Care's superb block on the line rescued Harlow.

Maynard was desperately unlucky not to score as she impressed on her debut.

Witham finished off three short-corer opportunities without reply to seal a 5-1 win.

Promoted Harlow Ladies seconds edged a five-goal thriller against Witham seconds.

Rowena Rickett outpaced the Witham defence before sliding the ball across the D for Kelly Ball to tap in Harlow's first.

Witham equalised within five minutes of the restart following a quick break, finding the net despite heroics from keeper Linda Rowley.

Harlow regained the lead minutes later, with the lively Rickett firing into the bottom left corner of the net.

But Witham equalised again a few minutes later. A mistake in the D gifted them a short-corer from which they scored.

Lucy Dearman tapped in from close range in the last minute to seal victory for Harlow.

Ladies player injury jinx strikes

RFU National Challenge South East North One

Harlow Ladies . . . . . 40
Chelmsford . . . . . 0

HARLOW Ladies got their league season off to a fantastic start with a 40-0 mauling of Essex neighbours Chelmsford.

However, there was a price to pay as Harlow's Carla Marshall was taken to hospital with a broken ankle.

The jinxed side had already lost scrum-half Charlotte Smith to a broken leg in a pre-season friendly against Romford.

However, the hosts – who said afterwards they were inspired by Japan's shock win over South Africa in the Rugby World Cup which they watched in the clubhouse at Ram Gorse – produced some scintillating play to wipe out their rivals.

Newcomer Jess Costanzo kicked over two early penalties to put Harlow 6-0 up.

A catch and drive propelled Harlow forward, sucking in Chelmsford's defence, opening up space for Kelly Smith to peel off and crash over the try-line to take Harlow into half-time leading 11-0.

However, the hosts suffered a blow in the second half when Marshall was taken off by stretcher and underwent treatment at hospital.

This left the team with 14 players.

This did not dampen Harlow's spirits though, and the team fought hard, stealing Chelmsford's ball in the scrums and dominating the line-outs.

Strong forward play from set-pieces meant that Harlow spent most of the second half pinning Chelmsford in their own 22.

Costanzo again used her skilful kicking skills to open up the Chelmsford defence and Harlow capitalised, scoring five tries as the floodgates opened.

Nichola Shambrook, Leah Dixon (2), Tracey Wedd and Emily Wooller all scored. Costanzo converted two of those tries.

Harlow's next game is a week on Sunday against Wymondham.

SELECTION: Lynn Bryant

Lynn's England Deaf call-up

RAMS Ladies player Lynn Bryant has earned glowing praise from the club chairman as she prepares to make her debut for the England Deaf team.

Bryant was called up to the squad and is set to play the Cannock Ladies team this weekend.

Harlow Rugby Club chairman Tracey Wedd was delighted with Bryant's call-up.

Wing Bryant, 46, came into the game very late, but has made rapid progress since joining Harlow in 2013 and played for Essex last season.

Wedd said: "It is amazing for someone who is still learning the sport and is partially deaf to achieve so much.

"Lynn came to us in September 2013 having never played but fancied trying something different and also wanted something 'social' to get involved in.

"It is surprising she decided to do this at such a late stage in her life.

"We had never needed to worry about anyone with a hearing disability before and she was quite worried about it and what the others would think of her.

"But we soon overcame this and made sure she understood what was happening.

"She played in the Essex squad last season, which was a great experience for her and I think gave her the confidence to try out for the England Deaf squad."

Bryant is hoping to attract a sponsor to help her with her costs of playing rugby and representing the England Deaf team. If you can help contact her on at Chairman@Harlow-Rugby.co.uk

Ten-try feast for Rams but coach wants more

Hat-trick for Phillips but Harron's unhappy with tally

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RFU London Division Three North East

Harlow . . . . . 66
Old Brentwoods . . . . . 5

A RAMPAGING display from the Rams secured a comprehensive victory on the opening day of the league season.

But head of coaching Lee Harron was unsatisfied and has demanded a greater clinical edge as he knows his side will face much tougher tests this term.

Harron said: "I'm pleased we got off to a good start in the league. We will come up against much stronger opposition this season and need to be more clinical and take our chances."

The Rams scored ten tries as Old Brentwoods were left broken and battered.

The icing on the cake was excellent kicking by fly-half Danny Smith, slotting eight out of ten attempts, some from out wide.

Higher

His points tally could have been higher had Harlow not opted to run the ball from a number of kickable penalties.

Harlow took the lead with a try from Jamie Fricker midway through the first half, as they switched the ball across the field to score out wide.

The hosts added two more first-half tries through Josh Drake and Fricker with a second.

The fourth try from Kain Claridge proved to be the turning point in the match and came right on the stroke of half-time.

Harlow could have kicked this for a penalty but Smith cleverly swept the ball to touch, allowing the pack to use their strength at a rolling maul from the subsequent line-out to cross the whitewash.

This meant the bonus point for four tries was already in the bag.

The Rams scored six tries in the second period, Alastair Phillips grabbed a hat-trick, while Ryan McGlone, Scott Whitby and Rob Mackie completed the rout.

A break away in the closing minutes produced a consolation try for the visitors.

Skipper Shaun Roberts said: "We probably could have scored five or six more tries. Against the better teams we have to take those chances. But for the first game to get a bonus point win we would have to be happy with that."

The Rams make the long trip to Southwold in Suffolk this Saturday to face a team promoted last season. Harlow are missing some players who are attending Rugby World Cup matches.

Essex County Cricket Club

Essex coach by January

ESSEX County Cricket Club chief executive Derek Bowden has confirmed they want a new head coach by at least January.

Paul Grayson left his post at the beginning of this month after the Eagles' Royal London One-Day Cup quarter-final defeat by Yorkshire, leaving Chris Silverwood in charge for the final four County Championship games of the season.

Australian Darren Berry is the latest to be linked with the job.

But Bowden insists that the club are a long way off naming a new head coach.

In a club interview, he said: "There are no names in the hat at the moment, but obviously we have had some interest around the globe."

"We will be putting together a recruitment panel in the next couple of weeks and probably by the end of October we will have a shortlist with the view of having a new head coach, certainly by the end of January."

The Eagles reached both the quarter-finals of the NatWest T20 Blast and Royal London One-Day Cup and look destined to finish third in Division Two of the County Championship for the second season in a row.

And Bowden admitted that the results were not quite good enough. "I think so far it has been an average season," he added. "I don't think that we have been awful, this year was probably average and not living up to potential. We certainly off the field, haven't been awful either."

Schoolwork will not limit Foster

Skipper to put club first despite new role

by Oliver Harbord

oliver.harbord@hertssexnews.co.uk

ESSEX skipper James Foster has insisted the club is still his number one priority despite taking up a new role at Forest School.

Foster was announced as the East London school's new cricket professional on Friday, with the job commencing at the end of this month.

And despite many supporters thinking that this could sound the end of the 35-year-old's playing career with Essex, the skipper hopes to still be a big part of the Eagles' plans.

Foster said: "At this moment in time I will be available for all formats of the game. I'll be dovetailing the two and won't be missing out on any training over the winter with Essex."

"When pre-season starts, when we are in five or six days a week, then that will be my priority."

"The main focus, while I am still playing, will be helping here [Forest] in the winter months, during the first two terms.

"That is something we have agreed and then during the summer months I will dip in where I can."

"The county system is ridiculously busy, so it will be about nipping in and coming to a few games. With the county set-up, the winter is a massive time to start prepping up for the season."

Pressures

"I think my time will be used well within those months and it might not just be the cricket, there might be the chance to work with other sports."

"Ultimately, there are the same pressures in everything, but with a different sport, so I am hoping to have an impact in other areas as well."

Foster also confirmed that the new role had been in the pipeline for some time and had nothing to do with the recent departure of Paul Grayson as head coach.

"I initially spoke to Saul Foulds [head of cricket at Forest School] about a year or so ago, with the prospect of whether the school would be interested to have me," he added. "With recent events with Essex and Paul, that didn't have any influence whatsoever. I am just absolutely thrilled to be in the new role at Forest."

The wicket-keeper has strong ties with the school, having been a pupil between 1987 and 1998.

Foster will also be following in the footsteps of another Essex legend, Stuart Turner.

Turner was master of cricket while Foster was a pupil, and the new cricket professional is looking forward to following in his mentor's footsteps.

Foster said: "While I am still playing, I really enjoy coaching."

"I have done it for a few years now and it is something I really want to do, and what a great way to start, in a role like this at Forest."

Hawks look for success on two fronts

WITH the start of the basketball season just under a week away, Harlow Hawks are adding the finishing touches to what will be a busy campaign.

The senior team will continue to play in Hertfordshire County League Division One.

But the club also applied to compete in the Essex County League and will for the first time in the Hawks' history take their place in this league.

As a new entry to the league they will be playing in Division Two in the Essex League.

The club plays its home matches at Harlow Leisurezone.

Hawks have on two occasions in the past played in the Essex Cup competition, but never in the league.

Harlow will also play in Essex Cup/Shield and Herts Cup matches.

Hawks supremo Shab Niaz (pictured) said: "Even though the season will prove to be a challenging one for the Hawks due to the number of fixtures that we will have to fulfil, the size of the squad was a crucial factor in taking this option."

"The team had about 15 possible senior players registering for the season, plus a number of U18 junior players that could be selected for games as and when required."

"This is a feasible option and one which hopefully enables Hawks to be in a good position in the future for the senior team."

"The additional number of games means that there will be plenty of basketball for the squad."

Thunder

The senior team start their season with a home encounter in the Herts League against Bedford Thunder on Wednesday October 7.

The first match in the Essex League is on Friday (October 9) away to the Pirates in Thundersley.

It is not just the senior team that will be experiencing something new this season, the Hawks will also be playing in the inaugural Essex U12 League, with 11 teams competing in it.

The format means that each team plays one another once before Christmas, and then in the New Year the top teams compete in the Regional U12 League against the other top teams from the other surrounding counties.

In addition to the above the club is looking to develop its girls section this season.

Over the years the club has run mixed sessions and have had a few girls attending across the various younger age groups.

A few of the girls that have attended Hawks sessions over the years have gone on to represent their county.

The girls' sessions are at Harlow Leisurezone on Saturdays 3-4pm.

2014 play-off final loss avenged by emphatic display

by Alan Scott

Ryman North

Harlow Tn	..... 5
Witham Tn	..... 2

ASSISTANT boss Spencer Knight hailed the Hawks' new-look front-line as they avenged their 2014 Ryman North play-off final defeat to Witham Town on Saturday.

Harlow Town crushed their Essex rivals, with Alex Read playing just behind Junior Dadson, in a different attack.

Harlow were 5-0 up after 50 minutes.

Witham scored two consolation goals in the second half but the side, relegated from the Ryman Premier last season, could not deal with Harlow's clinical edge.

Knight said: "We like Ready in there. What he does is gets in there, slides balls through that he wants to get on the end of."

"Late in games Junior Dadson will cause all sorts of problems for defenders."

Harlow, who had lost 3-0 to Witham in the 2014 play-off final to miss out on promotion, took the lead on 15 minutes when Ibrahima Sonko headed in his first Harlow goal from a corner.

It was 2-0 on 19 minutes when Read set up Ryan Melaugh to rifle home.

Lewis Perkins stabbed in a rebound on 34 minutes after Dadson's effort struck a post.

Read made it 4-0 a minute before the break, scoring from close range.

Harlow made it 5-0 on 50 minutes when Dadson ran through and squared for Read to score from close range.

Daniel Emmanuel scored a consolation for Witham on 57 minutes and Lance Akins made it 5-2 on 62 minutes with a header.

Knight added: "In the first half we did not think we played that great but every mistake they made we punished it. But overall 5-2 is a great win."

Winger Shane Stamp, 23, resigned by Harlow after a short spell at Ryman Premier side Billericay, came on as a sub.

Harlow have also completed the signing of midfielder Lee Flavin, who has joined from Ryman Premier Division Leiston.

The 25-year-old had an unsuccessful trial at Dumbarton.

A plaque was presented to striker Read before kick-off against Witham to commemorate his 100 goals for the Hawks.

Horton's in last chance saloon

Boxing

RICHARD HORTON says he will quit boxing if he doesn't win the Southern Area super-middleweight title next month.

The 33-year-old from Harlow meets Darryll Williams for the vacant belt at the Camden Centre on Friday October 2.

The show, co-promoted by Mickey Helliet and Warrior Promotions, will be screened by London Live.

Horton said: "I'm going to be 34 in November, so I know this is my last shot and if the fight doesn't go my way I will walk away and enjoy family life."

"I'm training harder than ever. I'm going to give this everything."

I was going to box in Bournemouth next month, but when this chance came up I jumped at it."

It will be Horton's first shot at Southern Area honours. In January 2009, he was beaten by Tony Salam for the super-middleweight title and in March he lost a challenge to Miles Shinkwin at light-heavyweight.

Horton says the fight with Shinkwin was a mistake. "I'm not a light-heavyweight and never have been," he said, and he's switched camps since the loss.

Horton is now being trained by Gareth Lawrence and Ryan Barrett and he said: "They are really whipping me into shape. I'm feeling so much stronger."

Horton admits he will need to be at his best to win the belt next month.

Williams has won all 11 fights to get his title shot and Horton describes him as "a tough, hungry fighter who can punch."

He added: "He's stocky, likes to fight in close and I have to stay on the outside and box his head off. I do think he's been a bit protected, but I know I'm going to need my 'A' game to beat him."

"I'm getting good sparring with [middleweight contender] Joe Mullender. He's very fit and comes forward all the time - just like Darryll."

"I'm looking forward to the fight. It's boxer against puncher. It has the makings of a good fight."

Tickets for the show are available from 07802 752537.

Mission to Moscow

MOSCOW was the destination for Harlow runner Andy Kinney as he completed two gruelling races in two days.

He competed in a 5km race at the world-renowned Gorky Park, finishing in 26min 51sec.

The following day Kinney finished the Moscow Marathon in 5387th place out of 5566 finishers in 5hr 46min 29sec.

Meanwhile, fellow Harlow Running Club member Peter Mills at the Ronde Ceretane 6K event in the French Pyrenees town of Ceret.

He was 482nd out of 868 finishers and first veteran 70 in 35:53.

His wife Joanne Mills was 584th in 38:01.

At the Hatfield Forest parkrun 5K, John Bull was 17th out of 157 finishers in 21:39, followed by Graham Saville (46th in 24:17), Spensor Brooks (47th in 24:20) and Terry Pike (62nd in 25:21).

At the Lee-on-the-Solent parkrun 5K in Hampshire, Paul Schroder was 66th out of 276 finishers in 23:48 and Wendy Spring was 92nd in 24:57.

At the second of three Hatfield 5K races, John Tennant was 53rd out of 179 finishers and third veteran 60 in 20:44.

At the Harvest Trail Half Marathon, run over a hilly off road course at Royston, Brendon Maclean was 41st out of 126 in 1:54:32. He was followed by Sean Flynn (59th in 1:56:48) and Holly Nairn (126th in 2:27:09).

Ben Chitiyo won the Harlow parkrun 5K out of 108 finishers in a fantastic 19:03.

FINALLY ON TOP OF THE WORLDS

Athlete feared another snub after his 2012 rejection

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

RICHARD CHIASSARO admitted he was convinced the British Paralympic Association was going to snub him again – but instead got his call up to make his IPC World Championships debut.

The 33-year-old Harlow Athletic Club member will race in three events at next month's Championships in Doha.

He races in the T54 wheelchair events, and has been selected in the 100m, 200m and 400m.

He is ranked eighth in the world in the 100m and 200m and was just eight inches from beating the world number one, Finland's Leo Pekka Tahhti, earlier this year in the 100m.

But before he got the nod for Team GB last Thursday, he was nervous because of his failure to make the team for the London 2012 Paralympics.

He said: "I didn't think I'd get in. After London I don't take anything for granted any more.

Opportunity

"I won't repeat what I said when they told me, I was expecting for them to say 'sorry, try again the year after'.

"I've got the opportunity now. You can't win medals unless you're there so this is the first step for me.

"I might be eighth in the world but I'm point three [of a second] off the gold medal – it's so close.

"Who knows, a mistake on the day, someone not performing, you never know."

Chiassaro, who went to school at Mark Hall and lives in Seymours in Harlow, has beaten many of his rivals over the last year and has rapidly advanced up the world rankings.

He knows he will go to Doha with a chance of not only getting to the final, but returning with a medal.

Chiassaro will meet up with the GB team and fly out to Qatar on October 11.

The Championships start on October 21 and run through to the 31st, but Chiassaro will compete on the very first day.

Having suffered the disappointment of his surprise omission from the GB squad for the 2012 London Olympics, Chiassaro used this to spur him on and knows he is in the best condition of his life as he chases a World Championships medal and edges closer to competing at the 2016 Paralympics in Rio de Janeiro.

Chiassaro was named as part of the 48-strong GB team with six London 2012 champions, including David Weir.

The Harlow racer, born with spina bifida, knows competition is fierce. "I've been away with a lot of these racers, the amputee runners and everyone, and there's new people coming through all the time. You can't get lazy because there's someone else there who wants your spot," he said.

Chiassaro was desperately close to beating the world number one recently.

"My last race was two weeks ago and I raced the World Record holder in the 200. He beat me by eight inches. My front wheel was within touching distance of his," he said.

"I know I have got it there. In the 100 he beat me by two metres, but in the 200 I closed the gap."

Harlow AC coach Paul Bailey said: "We are all so very, very proud of him at HAC and we wish him the very best of luck in Doha."

GB Paralympic Head Coach, Paula Dunn, said: "We've got a real mix of athletes who have won medals on the global stage as well as a number of new faces, which is really encouraging looking ahead to the future.

"It's a stepping stone for many of the athletes on their respective journeys to Rio, London 2017 and Tokyo 2020."

Cup fever a way to erase Kent blues

FA Cup fever is building as Harlow Town look to secure a place in the third round qualifying stage with a victory at Evo-Stik Southern League Division One Central side St Ives Town on Saturday.

However, Danny Chapman will be looking for a huge response from his Hawks after Monday's bitterly disappointing 2-1 loss at Thamesmead Town, which prevented the Essex side from going top of Ryman North.

It was the second time in successive seasons that Harlow had lost to the Kent club, one of two miserable results in the county that cost the Essex club the Ryman North title last season – the other being at Cray Wanderers.

Chapman certainly won't be going to Margate for his summer holidays!

However, if Harlow can get a result in Cambridgeshire at the weekend and win their second round qualifying tie, they will secure £4,500.

Memories

Memories are still fresh in the mind of Harlow's last FA Cup clash with Football League opposition in 2008, when nearly 2500 supporters filled The Harlow Arena for the first-round match with Macclesfield Town – then in the fourth tier of professional football. The Silkmen won 2-0.

If a replay is required this will take place on Tuesday and the scheduled home league match against Haringey Borough will be postponed.

But Harlow will have to improve on their display three days ago.

The Hawks took the lead when Alex Read converted a penalty awarded for handball on ten minutes.

Thamesmead equalised when Harlow keeper Niklas Freund's block saw the ball fall to Michael Uwezu, who couldn't believe his luck as he tucked into the net on 29 minutes.

The hosts made it on 54 minutes when Jack Berry headed in from a corner.

Harlow could not find an equaliser.
